CORRECT TERMINOLOGY

Always use first person language, if necessary to refer to the condition, say “Jack has Down syndrome”, never “he’s a Down’s boy”.

Focus on needs rather than problems, e.g. “Billy needs extra time to eat” rather than “Billy has problems eating”.

Avoid comments like “you can’t tell” or “she has it mild” or “he doesn’t have it that bad”.

Children with Down syndrome tend to be hypermobile and low-toned, therefore take care when supporting all movements and positions.

We advocate the use of Makaton

People with Down syndrome experience the same range of moods and emotions as everyone else.

Myth: Individuals with Down syndrome are stubborn.

A child with Down syndrome may not be able to tell you how they feel, which can lead to the false perception that s/he is stubborn.
